Tests continue in Hancock encephalitis monitoring

By BRENT MACEY
The Gulf Coast Mosquito Control Commission will continue a mosquito surveillance in Hancock County this week to discover if levels of Eastern Encephalitis are increasing. International Paper Company recently gave the commission its approval to trap birds for the study on its property in all three coastal counties. Some one percent of the birds captured in Hancock County so far this year have been discovered to be carrying the disease. Humans are considered safe from the disease in areas in which only one percent of birds tested carry the virus. In Jackson County however, the commission reports some 5.5 percent of birds tested are carrying Eastern Encephalitis. David Sykes of Gulfport, director of the commission, said if from five to ten percent of birds tested are carrying the virus, humans in that area could possibly contract the disease. Five people in four states have died this year from the disease which is known to cause brain inflammation. There is no cure for the illness and many people who survive suffer permanent neurological damage, including mental retardation, psychological problems and paralysis. Symptoms range from headache and

Waveland's 81-82 budget reduced some $200,000

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen recently approved an amended 1981-82 budget which is apparently some $200,000 less than originally estimated last year.

Although the aldermen gave rubber stamp approval of the amended budget at an Aug. 15 meeting, City Clerk and Alderman Barbara Rappold Monday said the altered budget had not been finalized and could only furnish a rough copy which contains some inaccurate figures.

The apparent inaccuracies are evident in totals for four funds in which expenditures and revenue amounts are not equal.

These unbalanced accounts are the library, general, sewer system, and water and gas funds.

Rappold said the imbalanced library fund resulted from a $1,400 1980-81 appropriation which was not paid to the library account, but was paid from the 1981-82 budget.

The imbalanced general fund figures resulted from some $2,460 transferred monthly from sales tax receipts to pay for the city's original sewer system construction, she reported.

When asked about the totals for the five other funds, Rappold said those totals could be inaccurate and criticized The Sea Coast Echo for not waiting to view the report until after she had refined the rough draft which was accepted by the aldermen.

Out of some 10 city funds the state loan and retirement, bond and interest, general, and water and gas accounts show the most dramatic decreases.

Based on revenue figures, the actual amended amounts of these accounts show:

—$43,787 for the state loan and retirement fund compared to the original budget figure of $78,496;

—$72,523 for the bond and interest fund compared to the original budget amount of $89,614;

—$895,363 for the general fund compared to the original budget figure of $941,497;

—$759,800 for the water and gas fund compared to the original budget amount of $835,000.

Funds which are substantially increased based on revenues are the federal revenue sharing fund from a $76,693 budgeted amount to an amended figure of $82,768 and sewer system fund from $233,784 to $246,000.

Other amended funds based on the expenditure amounts are:

—Recreation from $22,000 to $22,536;

—Fire protection from $14,900 to $14,696;

—Sewer general obligation and bonded indebtedness from $15,525 to $15,955;

—Library from $15,812 to $16,374. The revenue sharing budget increase resulted from the city receiving some $8,000 more of the federal funds.

The general fund reduction apparently resulted from decreased revenue sources such as sales and property taxes.

As a result, budgets for just about all city services such as fire and police protection were reduced.

Public safety funding reductions, drawn from the general account, include the police from $184,900 to $170,600 and fire from $104,000 to $79,000.

However, the city's paving budget is doubled from $20,000 to $45,000.

Rappold said the street paving budget hike resulted from savings in other budget areas.

City expenditures for employee benefits increased from a budgeted $85,000 to $105,000 which the city clerk said resulted from increased social security deductions and hiked employee hospitalization insurance premiums.

Although the water and gas budget is reduced the cost of natural gas purchases increased from a budgeted $260,000 to $302,000.

The city clerk reported the gas purchase price increase was absorbed by the city and not passed on to customers.

Local interests have requested that an eight-foot by 100-foot channel for Wolf and Jourdan Rivers.

Comments and views received will be incorporated into the planning process on the study.

ELECTION SEMINAR

The Hancock County Election Commission will conduct seminars at two locations in the County which all persons interested in serving as election officials for the Special Election for county superintendent of education, Sept. 11 and the General Election in November should attend.

The seminars are scheduled in the cafeteria of Hancock North Central School on Thursday, Aug. 26 and in the cafeteria at Gulfview School, Lakeshore on Friday, Aug. 27.

Both sessions will begin at 7 p.m. Ordinarily, the one at North Central will be for persons residing in the northern section of the county, while the one at Gulfview will be for those living in the southern section.

However, anyone unable to attend one may attend the other seminar.

Upon completion of each night's session, certificates will be issued to all persons attending either one or the other seminar.

ADULT EDUCATION

Hancock County adult education classes are slated to begin Tuesday, Sept. 7 at Charles B. Murphy Elementary in Pearlington; Gulfview Elementary in Lakeshore; and Hancock North Central in Rocky Hill.

Classes will be held each Tuesday and Thursday night from 6 to 9 p.m. Anyone interested in the classes should contact Philip Terrill, adult education supervisor, at 434-7873, 333-7303 or come to registration at one of the above locations on Sept. 7.

CAUGHT IN CRAB NET—Guiding a small motorcycle as it is lifted by a wrecker which Tuesday morning from Harbor Culvert Bayou in Clermont Harbor at Beach Boulevard are John Pernicelli, left, of John Pernicelli Wrecker Service in Bay St. Louis and investigator Alvin Ladner of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department. Henry Myers of Shoreline Park said he cast a crab net from the north side of the boulevard into the bayou to retrieve what he thought was a car rearview mirror. As he pulled the net back he discovered the mirror was attached to the small cycle submerged under the murky water and a nearby fisherman, Richard Parry of Slickell, notified the sheriff's department. Ladner Wednesday afternoon said the cycle has a Louisiana license plate, but has not been reported as stolen. He speculated the cycle was stolen in New Orleans or from a Hancock summer residence and thrown into the bayou. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Hancock jobless rate reaches five-year high

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Hancock County's unemployment rate reached its highest point in some five years with a July rate of 10.4 percent, based on a current Mississippi State Employment Service report.

Len C. Shearer, employment service labor market analyst in Gulfport, Wednesday said the last time Hancock's unemployment rate was above 10 percent was in 1977 when the annual average for that year was 10.7 percent.

Shearer said he did not have any Hancock employment records prior to 1970.

He speculated the need of several construction contracts at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant at the National Space Technology Laboratories could be contributing to the unusually high jobless rate.

Pipeline not yet completed

Production prices set for Catahoula gas well

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The State Oil and Gas Board recently approved establishing production prices for a Catahoula Oil and Gas Field well.

Gordon Brown No. One Well owned by Hunt Energy Corp. of Jackson and Dallas, Tex. located in Section 29, Township Six South, Range 15 West in the Hancock County field was approved for production by the board.

Theresa Moody, board hearings administrator, Wednesday in Jackson noted well production prices are regulated by the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 based on several criteria.

She noted that policy will remain in effect until 1985 when oil and gas price decontrols become effective.

Hunt requested the NPGA classification, but Moody said board records indicate a pipeline allowing well production has not been completed.

Hunt officials in Dallas will not provide any information regarding the company's Hancock operations.

Lanella Huhn, board production department statistical clerk, Wednesday in Jackson said tests indicate the Gordon Brown No. One Well is capable of producing 3,228,000-cubic-feet of pure natural gas per day (24 hours) containing no oil condensate or water.

Hunt's nearby Brown No. One Well is reportedly capable of producing some seven-million-cubic-feet of natural gas per day.

Both wells are tapping the Cotton Valley formation located some 18,000-feet below the Earth's surface.

PEYTON: AIRPORT ACTIVITY
Seismic crews were reportedly seen conducting tests in the Fenton Community and Stennis International Airport areas of the county.

Names of companies performing the tests are not known.

HANCOCK SEVERANCE TAX
Hancock County received some $109,729 in oil and gas severance tax receipts in July alone.

Steve Lambert, State Tax Commission chief of the severance and miscellaneous tax section, Wednesday in Jackson said the state collected some $294,690 in gas production severance and $34,450 in oil production severance taxes in Hancock for that month.

He said the county receives one-third of those amounts.

The section chief said he did not know what those dollar amounts represented in oil and gas production volume for July.

STATE SEVERANCE MONEY
The Mississippi Petroleum Council recently issued a report which lists statewide oil and gas severance collections for June at $8.5 million—a decrease of 35.6 percent compared to revenues one year ago.

Oil severance Tax Collections total $4.7 million for June compared to $6.1 million during the same period a year ago.

Natural gas severance tax collections during June were $3.8 million compared to $5.1 million a year ago.

The oil tax was collected on production of 2,793,193 barrels during June, compared to production of 4,197,902 barrels during the same month last year.

The gas tax was collected on production of 18,918,638 cubic feet (thousand cubic feet), compared to 28,940,381 cubic feet a year earlier.

The severance tax is levied at a rate of six percent of the wellhead value of

Bennett reported in good condition

By BRENT MACEY

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett was listed in good condition at the West Jefferson Hospital in Marrero Wednesday.

Janet Aime, the mayor's secretary, said Wednesday that she talked with the mayor's wife Joan who reported a doctor told her Tuesday night that he (the mayor) did not have a heart attack or a stroke.

Aime claimed Bennett was to be taken out of the Coronary Intensive Care Unit of the hospital later that day and placed in a private room.

"They will still be monitoring his condition but he will be in a private room and will not have to be connected to intravenous feeding," she said.

The mayor was admitted to Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis Monday afternoon.

Tuesday night he was transported via helicopter to the Marrero hospital.

The mayor, apparently became ill over the weekend but as of Wednesday Aime said doctors have not yet determined what caused the illness.

Walter Bennett is in the hospital. Walter Bennett, councilman at large and mayor pro tem, will handle the administrative matters of the city.

fever, to seizures and loss of memory and motor skills.

Sykes has been conducting a mosquito surveillance in all three Coastal counties in an attempt to locate where the virus is centered.

Sykes stated his study involves capturing birds in nets and taking blood samples—approximately four drops of blood from each one.

He said the birds, which are released unharmed after the samples are taken, incubate the virus in their system after being bitten by a mosquito carrying the disease.

"The cycle goes on and on; from bird to mosquito back to bird again," he said.

Humans and animals can contract the disease if they are bitten by a virus-carrying mosquito which has bitten an infected bird, he said.

Some 5.5 percent of the birds captured in an area in St. Andrews and Pascagoula are carrying the disease, Sykes said.

"If you are capturing birds which show between five and 10 percent positive, then it is supposed to indicate that you have a problem," he said.

"Anything above 10 percent shows there is a good chance you are going to have an outbreak," Sykes stated.

He noted the area in Jackson County with the 5.5 percent reading is 'barely within the area which indicates human cases are possible.'

However, Sykes noted spraying has been increased in that area in an attempt to kill any mosquitoes carrying the disease.

"That's one advantage to maintaining a surveillance. You get advance warning if there is a problem and you can do something before human cases occur," he said.

He noted that Eastern Encephalitis is carried by fresh water mosquitoes in wooded rural areas.

For this reason the department recently contacted International Paper Company and received permission to capture birds in those heavily wooded areas.

Currently the department has captured some 500 birds in the three county area, he said.

Sykes claimed a more serious problem is being faced in the northern regions of the state and in Jackson.

"The reason is probably because they don't have any type of surveillance there," he said.

Other areas in the south, including New Orleans and St. Tammany Parish in Louisiana report no real problem with the existence of Eastern Encephalitis.

Chuck Palmisano, director of the St. Tammany Mosquito Control, reported only nine of the 765 birds captured this year in that area are carrying the virus.

In New Orleans, George Carmichael, director of the New Orleans Mosquito Control Board, reported only two birds of some 1,000 captured are carrying the disease.

However, unlike the virus infected birds captured in other areas along the Coast, both birds captured in New Orleans were infected with St. Louis Encephalitis, Carmichael said.

He noted that type of virus is carried by urban mosquitoes which breed anywhere there is standing water in cities.

Sykes said that type of encephalitis strain also incubated in birds, but the mortality rate among humans is not as high as with Eastern Encephalitis.

He noted the Coast had problems with the St. Louis Encephalitis last year in Bayou View and Gulfport.

Sykes was uncertain if the Eastern Encephalitis problem this year is greater than the St. Louis Encephalitis last year.

"At this point I can't say because we are only mid-way through the (mosquito) season," he said.

All three directors said the numbers of mosquitoes this year have increased from last year.

They attributed the increase to an early spring and large quantities of rainfall.

Sykes claimed many people may not have noticed an increase in the numbers of mosquitoes this year because his department has been conducting aerial spraying.

Last year the Gulf Coast Mosquito Control Commission faced financial problems and no aerial flying was conducted.

This year the department has been allocated more money from the three coastal counties.

Sykes said that money was used to repair a spraying machine in a twin engine plane. An older plane was replaced by a newer, more gas-efficient plane.

He said the planes this year have flown a half-dozen flights over the Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Clermont Harbor areas of Hancock County.

The additional money available this year has also allowed the department to set up laboratory equipment in the Gulfport office to test blood samples.

Previously, all blood samples were shipped to Colorado for analysis. Sykes said it often took three weeks for results of the samples to be returned to the Gulf Coast.

Bits 'n pieces

We wish to extend our congratulations to Carl Baldenhofer on being selected Outstanding Citizen of the Year in Hancock County by the Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion Post No. 77 of Waveland.

Baldenhofer as many of you know has been involved with senior citizen programs such as Meals on Wheels and of course, art instructions for many years.

We feel the committee who made the selection of Baldenhofer should be commended.

There were many other deserving nominations, but, only one could be selected and we do want also to congratulate the other nominees for the distinctive honor.

The honor was bestowed Saturday night at an awards banquet at the Legion Hall on Coleman Avenue.

All we can hope is for Mr. Carl to keep up the art in Hancock County.

While on the subject of the Outstanding Citizens Award, we were sitting at the banquet with a gentleman whom several persons commented to on how much he looked like 'Prince Charles.'

With Prince Charles being in the news so much in recent months with the addition to the Royal Family, we guess this had a lot to do with the comments.

To take away the curiosity, the person these folks were commenting to was Robert Gustin, husband of Clarice Gustin, executive director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

So I guess everyone who attended the Outstanding Citizens Banquet can say they were close to 'Prince Charles.'

The good news this past week was the word given by three members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors after meeting with County Engineer Larry Seal, that several miles of paving of the Beach Road would begin in about two weeks.

We realize the Beach Road has been involved in a lot of discussion over the past several years and we are hoping monies will become available for the repairing and resurfacing of the entire area.

Much work has already been done on the road, such as pressure grouting, which entails the drilling of a hole through the concrete and putting cement in the hollow areas washed out.

We are very glad to see progress being made on the project.

The Hancock County Election Commissioners are sponsoring election seminars for persons interested in serving as election officials in the up-coming special election for superintendent of education and the November general election.

One will be tonight (Aug. 26) at the Hancock North Central Cafeteria and the other tomorrow night (Aug. 27) at the Gulfview School, both nights at 7 p.m.

This will be a good time for persons who are interested in serving at the precincts to make their presence known and learn what is involved in the process.

We realize that not everyone can serve as an election official, but, there are many more who could if they are qualified.

It is our understanding that certificates will be issued to persons attending one of these special instructions.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

On several occasions you have written about how an ad should be put together. But, could you go through it all, one more time? I Have Trouble Remembering.

Dear IHTR: So do I, and I won't promise this is the last time.

But, to break it down, there are basically five main ingredients or components in an ad.

These include 1) Illustrations, 2) Headlines, 3) Copy, 4) Name or Logotype, and 5) White Space.

Let's take them in order, week by week.

On the fourth part, your name or logo type (a special way of printing the name of your business), don't ignore it or assume it to be unimportant.

Big firms spend thousands of dollars having their corporate design perfected.

While you probably don't want to go to the lengths and expense they go to, you should nevertheless find a suitable and flexible presentation for the name of your business and use it religiously.

patible with your store and the image you want to create and maintain for it.

Flexibility would require that the same design be usable everywhere your name appears—in your ads, on your letterheads, on packages, on the labels of store-brands, and on the front of your store.

This same consistency in ads can enhance recognition of your offerings.

We commented recently about a major department store whose ads are so consistent in style that a special offering was sold out, even though the name of the store was inadvertently omitted.

While we don't recommend leaving out the name on your ads, it certainly would seem prudent to present your name in a consistent manner.

Something may become so familiar it seems invisible. But there is a big difference—it's like the difference between an old, ever-present, taken-for-granted friend and the one who's never there.

CONTINUING EDUCATION—Joe Ray McNeal, left, assistant inspector for the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol on the Gulf Coast, gives a brief review of topics to be discussed on 'accident investigation' in classes at the Hancock County Courthouse Tuesday. McNeal, a former instructor at the Police Academy in Jackson, used visual aids, slide projectors, and lectures for a three hour class and will have another tonight and another next week on the special training. Officers attending the classes include members of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Piquette Police Departments. NEWS FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT

In order to meet Mississippi's increasing demand for volunteer services, persons from nearly every branch of society are being called on to join the state's volunteer movement.

The growing list of volunteers, who aided more than 500 Mississippi organizations, communities and towns in 1981, includes farmers, students, doctors, lawyers, firemen, policemen, teachers, nurses, homemakers, carpenters, journalists and senior citizens.

Ruth Wilson, director of the Governor's Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation, however, says that more citizens must join the effort if volunteerism is to make notable advances in 1982.

"By establishing a network of citizens and volunteers, communities can provide for themselves and take control of their lives," said Mrs. Wilson. "They can organize a community crime watch, community gardens and even sit in on board meetings at city hall."

"Volunteers have long been the state's most effective manpower resource," she added. "Through volunteerism, we have the ability to solve our most crucial problems."

Past crucial problems, such as the one which confronted the residents of one Mississippi community, now represent present accomplishments of the volunteer movement.

A year ago, this poverty plagued neighborhood suffered from the lack of adequate recreation facilities, especially a little league baseball park.

The deteriorating neighborhood and economic decline often forced children into the street and prevented them from participating in productive team sports.

Realizing the need for a community facility, local citizens consulted the Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation, which coordinated the volunteer effort to build the park.

The neighborhood united to support the project and as a result of local donations, community manpower and volunteer fund raising, the town built its own baseball field.

Only two months following the initial move to construct the park, the community celebrated the opening of the new facility, which was complete with bleachers, hot dog stands and happy children.

According to Mrs. Wilson, similar successes can be made possible through volunteerism and building networks in communities.

Workshops, recently held in Jackson, Clarksdale and Meridian, demonstrated the networking system of linking organizations and communities as well as teaching new concepts and techniques for exchanging information.

In addition to developing volunteer projects for their respective communities, participants heard Dr. Ivan Scheier, a leading proponent of the networking theory.

"Dr. Scheier's models demonstrated ways in which networking can enhance performance, save money and improve the quality of life in Mississippi," said Mrs. Wilson. "It all comes down to caring. If communities combine their resources, many local people will benefit."

For additional information on volunteerism in Mississippi, persons may contact the Governor's Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation at 354-7091 or write 802 N. State St., Suite 100, Jackson 39201.

DRUNK DRIVING LEGISLATION

The Mississippi Highway Department, in its monthly publication "Highway Update," reports nationwide costs for drunk driving accidents are estimated at $17-24 billion each year.

The U.S. Senate recently passed a bill which provides for incentive grants for highway safety programs in states with required penalties for drunk driving.

A state must suspend a driver's license for 90 days following the first drunk driving offense and for one year in subsequent offenses.

Two drunk driving convictions within a five-year period would require mandatory imprisonment for two days.

Under these regulations, an alcohol content of 0.1 percent would constitute intoxication.

The bill authorizes $25 million from the Highway Trust Fund for the grants in fiscal year 1983 and $50 million for FY 1984.

Similar legislation has been introduced in the House.

High speed chase results in arrest

By BRENT MACEY

A Louisiana man was apprehended in Hancock County following a high-speed chase Monday morning and charged with burglary, one count of grand larceny.

George L. Roth, 37, of 3714 Arkansas Street in Kenner, La., is being held under no bond in the Hancock County Jail.

Sheriff's Department Investigator Alvin Ladner said the burglary and grand larceny charges stem from Roth's alleged activities in the Clermont Harbor area of Hancock County some three weeks ago.

Roth allegedly burglarized several homes in the area and stole a pick-up truck at that time.

Ladner said Roth escaped from a Louisiana Department of Corrections satellite prison in Jackson, La. last May.

He is also wanted for questioning by both the Jackson, Miss. Police Department, and the Gulfport Police Department for car theft, Ladner said.

According to Ladner, the Mobile Police Department want to question Roth concerning stolen credit cards.

Ladner explained that the Hancock Sheriff's Department had been looking for Roth when it received a tip Friday night that he was in the Clermont Harbor area.

"An all night search for the suspect turned up nothing," Ladner said.

"Monday morning we received a second tip that the suspect was in the area and an all points bulletin was issued.

"Chuck James of the Waveland Police Department spotted the suspect in Buccaneer State Park," Ladner said.

Ladner and Sheriff's Department Investigator Delbert Seay set up a road block at the exit of the park and James followed Roth from the park.

Ladner said Roth ran the road block and was chased at high speed by law enforcement officials for some five minutes.

"We cornered him in a residential area in Lakeshore where he was arrested without incident at that point," Ladner said.

A .25 caliber semi-automatic hand gun was confiscated during the arrest.

POT BUST

Frank Fontenot, 23, of 206 B Union Street in Bay St. Louis was arrested at his apartment at approximately 2:30 p.m. Monday and charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell or deliver.

Ladner said the sheriff's department obtained a search warrant from Justice Court Judge John Chevis after receiving information from a confidential informant.

Approximately one pound of marijuana was confiscated, Ladner said. Fontenot was released from jail under a $2,500 bond.

Officers involved in the arrest included: Bay St. Louis Police Department Patrolman Larry Ladner, Waveland Investigators Robert (Poochie) Tartavouille and Sandra Henley; and Sheriff's Department Investigators Delbert Seay and Ladner.

PRESCRIPTION FORGERY CHARGES

A New Orleans resident was arrested by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Tuesday at the Colonial Plaza Shopping Center in Bay St. Louis when he allegedly attempted to fill a fraudulent prescription for a narcotic dilaudid.

Ladner reported Cecil David Jones, 50, of 1114 Piety Street, has been charged with six counts of prescription forgery and was in Hancock County Jail under a $10,000 bond Wednesday.

According to Ladner, Jones allegedly passed four other prescriptions for dilaudid in that drug store in the past.

"Since he is from New Orleans and based on the fact that dilaudid is a narcotic drug and very seldomly prescribed, the pharmacist got suspicious and called the Sheriff's Department," Ladner explained.

Ladner and Sheriff's Department Deputy Dennis Tartavouille made the arrest.

Dangerous cargo accidents reported

A tractor trailer rig hauling an inflammable load and a tanker truck carrying a toxic acid were involved in separate accidents on interstate highways in south Mississippi Tuesday and Wednesday.

None of about thirty 55-gallon drums of organic peroxide spilled their contents when the tractor trailer transporting the flammable cargo was involved in a four-vehicle wreck on Interstate 10 in Hancock County early Tuesday morning.

Traffic was rerouted for about nine hours after the 2 a.m. wreck, which involved two tractor trailers and two pickups just west of the Hwy. 607 overpass, but no one was injured.

The west-bound, hazardous chemical-laden 18-wheeler overturned when it struck the rear of a tractor-trailer carrying a load of finished lumber, said State Trooper Curtis Newman of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol.

The fuel tank of the overturned tractor-trailer which was carrying the potentially explosive peroxide ruptured and leaked diesel fuel onto the highway.

The truck sustained heavy damage to the cab section and came to rest on its side on the north embankment of the highway.

Until about 11 a.m. Tuesday, west-bound traffic was rerouted off the interstate just east of the overpass, across Miss. 607 then back onto the interstate, just west of where the accident occurred.

Driver of the chemical truck, Gerald Leatherberry, 55, of Pensacola, Fla., was issued a traffic citation for following too close.

The lumber truck was not damaged. Its driver was identified as Richard Sharpe, 24, of Pasadena, Texas.

None of the chemical containers were thrown from the enclosed trailer, and none of the drums ruptured inside the trailer, said State Trooper Hershel Ladner.

Before the chemical truck left the highway, it was struck from the rear by a pickup, driven by Clinton Jones, 31, of Fort Walton Beach, Fla. The pickup sustained damage.

About five minutes later a second pickup, pulling a jeep on a trailer, skidded when it rolled onto the fuel-slick highway.

The pickup and trailer became unhitched, with the trailer and jeep overturning down the south embankment and the pickup going down the north embankment, said Newman.

The second pickup was not damaged, but its trailer and the jeep sustained considerable damage, said Newman.

Driver of the second pickup was Donald Hoover, 21, Winter Haven, Fla. State Trooper Harvey Simmons assisted Newman and Ladner. Others responding to the accident were the Hancock County Sheriff's Office, the NASA fire department, the Pearl River Fire Department, the Diamondhead Rescue Unit, and the State Highway Department. Emergency medical personnel also responded.

SULFURIC ACID

A tanker truck loaded with sulfuric acid crashed off Interstate 59 near Picayune Wednesday and began leaking the corrosive chemical, forcing authorities to close about 2½ miles of the busy highway.

"There were no injuries and everything is well in hand," a spokesman for the Pearl River County Sheriff's Department said. "Crews from the state pollution control agency are cleaning up right now."

The spokesman said it appeared the truck driver lost control of his rig and slammed into pine trees growing in the median of the interstate about eight miles north of the Mississippi-Louisiana state line.

"It's not known whether the tank ruptured or a line busted when he hit the trees but there was leakage," he said.

Authorities said I-59 was blocked off from the north Picayune interchange to the Carriere interchange, a distance of about 2½ miles, and that traffic was being routed onto US 11.

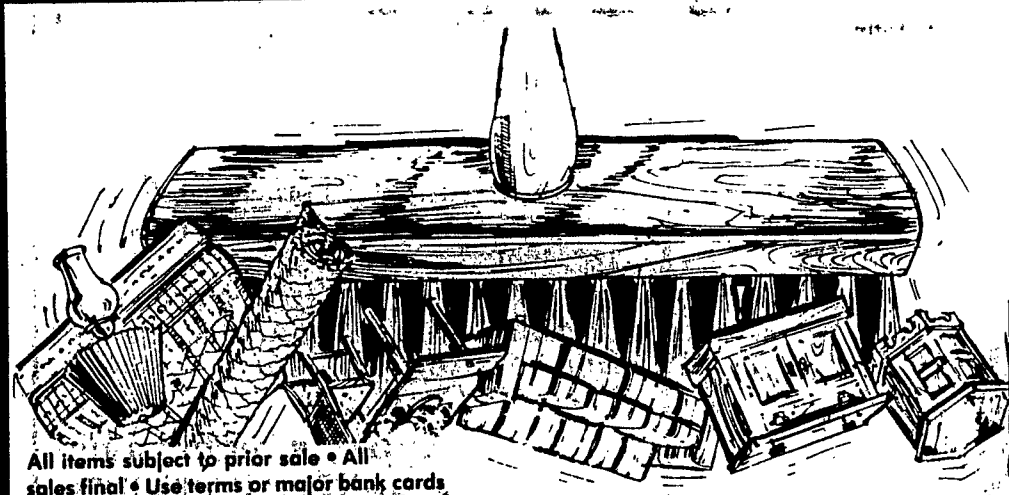

"The highway will remain closed until the spill is cleaned up and they can bring another tanker in to pump out the damaged one," the spokesman said.

Extension Service reports:

Protective wax coatings not harmful to produce

Shoppers who select the bright, shiny apples can easily remove the artificial waxes which provide the gloss.

An Rushing, a food marketing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said people who enjoy these products should have no fears or concerns about their safety, despite efforts by some consumer groups that these waxes be classes as food additives.

She said consumer groups have started hearings on a national level aimed at requiring suppliers of waxed fresh fruits and vegetables to identify those products at the point of sale.

Rushing said all the processor has done when waxing the product is to replace what nature had provided before the fruit or vegetable was picked and processed.

"Nature protects most plants, flowers and fruits with a shield of wax," Rushing said. "The layer of wax holds in the supply of moisture and prevents damage to young plants from the sun's rays."

Rushing said the first, man-made application of wax to fresh fruits and vegetables occurred on citrus, but the Chinese were experimenting with waxing processes as far back as the 12 century.

"The citrus waxing process was invented in 1922 by a man named Brodgen, who later created the Brodgen Co. in Pomona, Calif.," Rushing said. "That company is now one of several responsible firms providing vegetable-based waxing materials."

Rushing said citrus fruit, as it matures on the tree, develops a coating of natural plant wax, which has a protective function of holding down the loss of moisture and nutrients from the plant.

She said the fruit picks up dust and dirt on the tree, so the first step, after picking is to bathe the fruit in the packinghouse.

"The washing process includes soaking and scrubbing in a detergent, and thorough rinsing in hot water," she said. "This removes the natural protective wax from the fruit, so the man-made wax is applied to restore nature's own coating."

"Without it, the fruit would quickly become soft, perhaps decay, and lose a great deal of its juice content and nutrients. There is no need to remove the wax from the peel before using it in recipes, since the wax is completely safe as an edible material."

Rushing said the same explanation of the waxing process applies to most apples grown in the nation.

"The natural wax of the apple is removed during preparation for shipping to market," she said. "Man merely restores a protective coating of edible wax."

The marketing specialist said waxing is not used to improve the quality of inferior products, but only slightly retards the development of some inherent weakness in the product. She said waxing will not improve the product.

Rushing said in addition to most citrus and apples, other products that have wax applied include rutabagas, cucumbers, many tomatoes, melons and sweet potatoes.

"While there is admittedly a cosmetic effect, the principal function of the wax is to prevent and retard shriveling and dehydration of the produce," she said. "Many of these product items are composed of 85 to 90 percent water."

Rushing said the amount of wax needed is small. She said in normal situations, a gallon of wax will polish and protect five tons of apples. She said an orange can be protected by about six drops of wax.

"There have been instances, particularly in cucumbers, where the packer was obviously not as careful as he should have been in the application of the wax, and the cucumbers arrived at the point of sale almost dripping with protective coating," Rushing said. "Even in those unusual circumstances, the consumer using the peel in a salad without washing should not fear harm in eating it."

Rushing said waxes are derived from vegetable bases. One is known as food grade paraffin, highly refined to screen out any harmful components. Caruba, a wax derived from palm fronds, also is used. Some waxes have a mineral oil base with no laxative effect. The other material used for fruits and vegetable waxes is resins. These are a class of vegetable substances widely used in making a number of products.

"Regardless of the derivation, all waxes on fruits and vegetables have been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as completely safe and edible materials, non-toxic to humans," Rushing said. "These products also are policed constantly."

Rushing also has advice for those who still may fear the wax on fresh fruits and vegetables, despite the explanation.

"No problem. People can just scrub off the wax before using the product, just like the processor scrubs off the natural wax at the packinghouse," she said.

Forester

Here's some information that you readers might want to use or file for possible future reference.

It deals with possibilities for recovering some of your loss via tax deduction when your trees or forests are severely damaged or destroyed by, for example, a tornado or a horde of insects.

The information comes from a recent issue of the Michigan Forest and Park Association Newsletter:

"The declaration of a casualty loss resulting from damage to or death of forest crops, shade and/or ornamental trees has usually not been allowed by the Internal Revenue Service, or if an allowance has been permitted the value is usually reduced substantially. However, a couple of recent court decisions have upheld the validity of casualty tree losses."

Tax deductions to property owners for loss of trees were permitted in two recent tax court decisions that overruled the IRS. The first case involved a Virginia homeowner who lost an 80-foot tall century-old black oak valued at $15,000 to an onslaught of woodborers. The IRS held that the loss was not "unexpected or unusual in nature" and disallowed the deduction.

The Tax Court found that the death of the tree caused by an attack of woodborers (which can gnaw around the vital center of a tree in just a few weeks) was a sufficiently sudden event to be classified as a casualty. The second case involved an Indiana farmer who lost 12 trees to a tornado.

A horticultural appraiser said loss of the trees reduced the value of his property by $28,000 per acre, or a total of $28,000.

The IRS ruled that loss of the trees did not decrease the property value and disallowed the deduction. The Tax Court considered both appraisals and permitted a deduction of $19,500 for trees lost in the vicinity of the farmhouse. So there you have it. If your tree loss is "sudden, unexpected or unusual in nature" it might pay you to look into claiming a casualty loss and perhaps taking a chance with the Tax Court. At least you'll want to let your tax preparer know about the above Tax Court decisions.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING For The SMALL CITIES COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT

All interested citizens, agencies and organizations are urged to attend.

PUBLIC HEARING

The public hearing for the Bay St. Louis 1982 Small Cities Program, originally scheduled for August 26 at 6:00 p.m. has been changed to Thursday, September 2, 1982 at 6:00 p.m. at the Bay St. Louis City Hall.

Fair settlement difficult

Overlooked costs common in divorce proceedings

In the highly charged atmosphere of a marriage breakup it is often difficult to reach a fair financial settlement. Distribution of income and property can be used as a weapon by one marriage partner, or the other.

"Dividing material possessions and money should be done carefully with the future of all in mind," said Norine Barnes, an area consumer management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"If there are children, the custodial parent may need almost the same amount of income as before to support the children at their present standard of living," she said. "The total family expenditures may not be significantly decreased by one less person in the family."

"In most cases both partners will experience a reduced standard of living after the divorce," Barnes said.

Barnes said many things are overlooked when child support payments are settled. Escalating costs, costs of summer camps, special lessons, such as piano or gymnastics, medical care and insurance usually receive little consideration.

"The parent who contributes 51 percent or more of the child support usually claims the child as a dependent for income tax purposes," she said. The recipient of child support payments does not pay income tax on that income."

Another consideration for tax purposes is alimony payments. Barnes said alimony is a term applied to any money other than child support that is paid to a spouse. Alimony payments are taxable to the payee and tax deductible to the payer.

"Money is often spent unwisely during times of stress," Barnes said. "This creates an increase in liability for the couple."

She said debts may be assigned to either partner, depending in part on who has the ability to pay. For joint debts, assignment to one partner does not relieve the other of obligations to the creditor.

The Extension Service specialist noted the father may carry life insurance with the children as beneficiaries. Additional term life insurance on the father may be bought to cover the child support payments in the case of death. If the mother is the custodial parent and has not previously had life insurance, she may wish to buy insurance to protect the children in case of her death.

"Usually the supporting parent will maintain health and major medical insurance on the children," Barnes said. If the supporting parent does not have health insurance coverage through employment, this will be an expensive budget item.

"Every aspect of the financial agreement should be in writing," Barnes said. "The verbal agreement is easily forgotten or misunderstood. Neither partner is likely to be pleased with the final distribution of the family assets. The settlement will probably be a compromise for both of them."

KNEE PAINS

Previous pains in the knees was the complaint of this nice person. Pain of such intensity that the knees would throb and ache. This lady noticed the pain more when sitting or kneeling and also she noticed she could not relieve the pain simply by extending the leg. Previous care provided unsatisfactory and she decided to follow the advice of a friend and try Chiropractic care. Complete analysis and spinal x-rays revealed the true cause of the problem. Relaxing Chiropractic adjustments were advised to remove pressure from the nerves in the spine, which supplied the legs. Adjustments brought the condition under prompt control and within a short time she was completely well. Why not investigate scientific Chiropractic now? You have nothing to lose but your poor health!

WARM WELCOME—Edith Pucheu of Bay St. Louis, center, and her sister Elsie are surrounded by a motorcycle escort in Swindon, England. The escort is dressed almost identically to CHIPS—a popular television show in England. The patrolmen, who are not actually police officers but are members of the Wildest Junior CB Club with Elsie's husband, arranged the unusual welcome for Mrs. Pucheu, her husband Evan and granddaughter Shan Bourn, all of Bay St. Louis, when the three visited England for three months recently. Mrs. Pucheu, who is still an English citizen, had not visited her sister or native home town for 26 years. Her recent trip was the second trip to England since she left the country after marrying her husband shortly after WWII. Her granddaughter is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jewel Bourn of Bay St. Louis.

But he also reported the high Hancock unemployed rate is for the most part the result of local residents losing jobs at companies not located in the county.

The July report lists 1,000 Hancock residents unemployed out of an available civilian labor force of 9,850.

A general decline in the number of industrial jobs is occurring on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, Shearer said.

He noted Harrison County's jobless rate for July is 8.8 percent, Pearl River County reports 14.6 percent, Jackson County is at 11.3 percent and Stone County is at 14.7 percent.

Shearer said Harrison has the lowest jobless rate on the coast due to job openings created by the summer tourist industry.

Hancock's jobless rate is lower than the state's 12.3 percent figure, but higher than the national rate of 9.8 percent for the same period, the employment service report shows.

The state's jobless rate reflected a seven-tenths percent increase from the previous month and the county's unemployment rate rose nine-tenths percent since June.

O.H. Simmons, State Employment

Security Commission executive director in Jackson, reports the state's jobless rate last year in July was 8.3 percent.

"Commission figures show 130,800 unemployed and 932,800 employed out of a state civilian labor force of 1,063,600. Initial unemployment insurance claims total 26,757," he says.

"Some 66 of the state's 82 counties have unemployment rates of 10 percent or higher in July. Seven of those 66 counties have unemployment rates in excess of 20 percent," Simmons reveals.

Counties with the highest unemployment rates in July are Jefferson, with 24.4 percent; Walthall, with 22.7 percent; and Attala, with 21.3 percent, the executive director reports.

Issaquena, Rankin, and Oktibbeha Counties have the lowest jobless rates in July. Issaquena has a rate of 5.1 percent, Rankin is at 6.6 percent, and Oktibbeha is at 7.9 percent, he notes.

Some 60 counties show an increase in unemployment rates from June to July, while 21 reported decreases. The unemployment rate in one, Clay County, was unchanged, Simmons adds.

Girl struck, killed by car

By BRENT MACEY

An 11-year-old Picayune girl died in Crosby Memorial Hospital Tuesday after she was struck by a car at approximately 7 a.m. that day on the Caesar Road, just north of Hancock County.

Pearl River County Sheriff Lawrence Holiday said Wednesday that he thought Carla Jean (Jeannie) Lee was waiting for a school bus at the time of the accident.

Holiday said two cars were traveling west along Caesar Road and "She was running east to west along the shoulder of the road. After the first car passed she stepped out into the road. I guess she thought there was only one car, he said.

Holiday reported several bystanders witnessed the accident and claimed it was "unavoidable."

No charges have been filed against Jeffery A. Smith, 23, driver of the car, of Route 3, Box 395 Picayune, Holiday said.

He stated he thought Smith was on his way to work at the time of the accident. Miss Lee, a seventh grader at Pearl River Central High School, is daughter of Wayne and Pam Lee of Rt. 3, Box 191, Picayune.

The body was taken to McDonald Funeral Home in Picayune.

Funeral services are slated for 10 a.m. Thursday at Burgetown Church of The Lord Jesus Christ near Carriere.

Burial will follow in Memorial Gardens Cemetery.

USM registration slated Aug. 29-31

Registration for the fall semester at the University of Southern Mississippi will be held Aug. 29-31.

Dormitories for students with definite room assignments will open Aug. 29. Dorm rooms for all other students will open Aug. 29.

Classes will meet beginning at 8 a.m. Sept. 1, with night classes meeting as scheduled.

Waveland Players presenting TV spoof Friday and Saturday

The Waveland Players, a community theater group if there ever was one with a place for everybody from toddlers to grandmas, will open "Fantasy Bayou," a variety show, this week at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

Performances are set for Friday and Saturday, Aug. 27-28 and the following Friday and Saturday, Sept. 3-4 at 8 p.m., ending with a 3 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Sept. 5. Tickets will be available at the door.

A spoof on television's popular Fantasy Island, the show opens with Mr. Robichaud (Ed Craig) and the diminutive Poldoux (nine-year-old Bahiyih Schwabacher) on hand to welcome the passengers alighting from the plane landing in the marshes and to comment on the dreams each guest hopes to fulfill as a guest in this moss-draped land "Where Dreams Come True." The script for the production was written by Jeanne-Marie Mell, who fulfills a fantasy of her own by playing Bette Davis in a "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" scene with Dottie Overall in the Joan Crawford role.

Barbara Jo and Dick Fitch are joint producers and directors, and they too act out a dream in a performance of "I wish I were 18 again."

Original skits by Bell include "Cryogenics," in which a rather flaky couple (Frank and Judy Gray) want to be frozen for the next 300 years; and a nightmare number in a dentist's office, complete with a batty bag lady (Edith Back).

Notable musical numbers include "Macho Man" with a large and odd assortment of males flexing their muscles and, with varying degrees of success, demonstrating their athletic prowess; a "Sister Kate" dance with the talented Hansel Baxter helping four-year-old Erica Schwartz (who doesn't need much) to do a shoulder-shaking shimmy.

The Bay Fore and After barbershop quartet (Bunk Garner, Brother Pierre St. Pierre, Eddie Hodges and Doug Taylor) will also perform, joined by Lana Noonan in a couple of courtship numbers. Lana and Bunk are also joined in several duets.

Nobody in Waveland would think of putting on a show without Piccola Dietrich and her dance classes.

Dietrich, choreographer, directs dance groups ranging from a solo tap dance by Monica Parker to teenagers wiggling to lively rock music to her dance and exercise class (whose fantasy is appearing on Broadway).

Ingrid Ling performs accompaniments at the piano.

Suit filed against state law allowing bond rate hikes

Some major firms are challenging the Mississippi law which allows utilities to impose rate increases under bond.

The Associated Press said a class action suit filed by Southeast Mississippi Legal Services names the Mississippi Power Co., South Central Bell and members of the Public Service Commission. It is on behalf of an elderly Hattiesburg woman and poor people in the state.

The Forrest County Chancery Court complaint contends that the law allows utility companies "unilaterally" to collect rate increases on a customer's bill. It asks that the law be declared unconstitutional and that utilities be barred from implementing rate increases under bond.

The suit comes on the heels of a recent $94 million rate increase filed by Mississippi Power & Light Co. The announcement drew widespread protests and calls for a special legislative session to void the rate-under-bond law.

The utility later promised Gov. William Winter, who was considering a special legislative session to deal with the rate controversy, that it would not impose the higher charges until the 1983 Legislature could consider the rate matter.

The bond law allows a utility to impose an increase while waiting for PSC consideration. If the commission cuts the increase, the difference must be refunded to customers.

Legal services attorney Kim Chaze said in the complaint that people in the class have "exceedingly low incomes" and lack the financial ability "or income elasticity to pay for utility rate increases that have not been scrutinized and evaluated" by the commission.

The rate-under-bond law deprives the public of its right to "make their objection and present relevant evidence regarding taking of their money by the utility," the action said.

It also complains that the law does not limit the number of bonded rate increase requests that can be "piled on top of one another," and fails to limit the monetary amount of a particular increase.

Chaze noted that if the court holds the law unconstitutional, then it would apply to all utilities in the state.

Public Service Commissioner Lynn Havens said that to his knowledge this was the first constitutional challenge of the rate-under-bond law.

There is a slim possibility that it would be ruled unconstitutional," he said. "The proper thing to do would be to repeal that provision."

Gulfport-based Mississippi Power Co. is now collecting two rates under bond stemming from a $39 million annual rate increase request in October, 1980, and a $21.9 million annual increase request in April. And, South Central Bell Telephone Co. in May began collecting most of its $98 million proposed annual rate increase.

Donald Dana, a spokesman for Mississippi Power Co., said officials at the utility believe the bond law is constitutional and that the company had followed the procedure set out in the law.

Growing Child

COORDINATION AND THOUGHT

Adults tend to think of coordination as being mainly physical.

But according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, when the job is easy but new, the skills involved are mostly mental.

A child learning a new skill must consciously think about what parts of the body are to move, where they should go and at what time.

Consider an everyday situation that requires complicated coordination. You have driven home with the groceries and start to carry two bags in at one time.

To make everything come out right, you must be sure that the house key is in hand before you pick up the second bag.

Then a knee must be brought into play to support the second bag as you unlock the door.

You find yourself thinking ahead, quickly planning what the next move will be.

Toddlers must do the same kind of planning with the simpler coordinations her life requires. At first, just avoiding furniture and objects on the floor took considerable motor planning.

When her explorations lead her to climb on and crawl under many different kinds of objects, pull wheeled toys around corners, carry bulky objects through doors, or open doors without bumping head or toes, she must continually be conscious of what her various body parts are doing.

If she is successful in her endeavors and keeps everything in line, we say that she is adequately coordinated.

A toddler has to think just as hard about the new things she does as we do with a much more complicated task.

It is often found that children who have learning disabilities are poorly coordinated. It is also often found that activities that develop coordination benefit the thinking and planning process.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Safety Commission issues urgent warning on pool drains

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued an alert to consumers on the risk of dismemberment to children associated with broken grates or missing drain grates in in-ground wading pools.

The commission is aware of at least five tragic incidents involving children who sat on drain holes and were trapped. The children's intestines were then sucked from their bodies.

A 4-year-old Pennsylvania boy suffered permanent injury when he lost 75-80 percent of his small intestine and his appendix while sitting on a drain hole at a private community wading pool.

The grate cover to the drain hole had been broken and removed from the pool the day before the accident.

In a similar incident in Birmingham, Ala. a 4-year-old girl was trapped over a drain hole, and was released from the drain suction only after the wading pool's pump was turned off. Examination revealed that the child's intestines had been sucked from her body.

The commission is investigating these and similar incidents and will take such actions as are needed to prevent further injuries. The commission is also alerting state and local governments regarding this hazard. The commission has discussed the potential hazard with the National Spa and Pool Institute and that organization supports CPSC's efforts to alert the public.

Each of the wading pools involved in accidents investigated has a pump that draws the water from the base of the wading pool through the drain hole to the filtering system and then returns the water to the pool. Children are attracted to the hole itself and the sucking action of the drain.

The commission urges parents to closely supervise children using wading pools and not allow them to play with drain holes or covers. The commission and NSPI urges pool owners, managers and lifeguards to follow a list of precautions issued by the National Spa and Pool Institute as part of the organization's industry standard:

- Shut down the facility if the drain cover is broken, damaged or missing.
- Immediately replace or repair broken or missing drain covers.
- Inspect the drain covers (grates) daily to be certain that grates are in good condition, and cannot be removed without the use of tools.
- Operators, lifeguards and other pool personnel must know where pump shut-off switches are and have ready access to them.

Anyone wishing to provide additional information regarding hazards with wading pool CPSC toll-free Safety Hotline drain grates may call the at 800-638-6326.

New coach touting MSU's 1982 corps of pass-catchers

MSU Assistant Coach Robert Ford, a newcomer to the State staff yet a man well-versed in the playing and coaching of pass catchers, feels he has a capable and qualified group at State in 1982.

Ford should know. He tied the NCAA record for longest touchdown reception twice while playing split end at the University of Houston with a couple of 99-yard scoring grabs and he has coached at New Mexico and Oregon State.

And some of the players in this unit include 1981 NCAA punt return average leader (16.2 yards per runback) Glen Young, clutch receiver Danny Knight, spring game topper (seven catches) Corwyn Aldredge, and second team All-Southeastern Conference choice (1981) Jerry Price.

With youngsters of this caliber, Coach Robert Ford is wearing a glad demeanor these days, but no one out of the end corps can count on a starting position or tons of playing time without sacrificing on the practice fields.

State's receiver have been taking bootballs back to McArthur Hall to sleep with on occasion, and Coach Ford's "snatch the rock" philosophy has the players attuned to the mental aspects of pass-grabbing.

Composing this year's group of varsity ends are Young, a 6-3, 205-pound senior from Greenwood; J.T. Thomas, a 6-0, 180-pound senior from Houston, Texas; Knight, a 6-0, 205-pound junior from Natchitoches; O.W. Richardson, a 6-1, 175-pound junior from New Hope.

Also among the varsity receivers are Clifton Eley, a 6-4, 230-pound junior from Clarksdale; Price, a 6-5, 245-pound senior from Enterprise; Eddie Hornback, a 6-3, 225-pound junior from Ocean Springs; Steve Duncan, a 6-3, 180-pound sophomore from Mobile, Ala.

Rounding out State's delegation at this spot on offense are James Bloodworth, 6-1, 190-pound sophomore from Atlanta, Ga.; Aldredge, a 6-5, 220-pound soph from Natchitoches, La.; Art Mordecai, a 6-1, 190-pound junior from Vicksburg; and Kevin McCarter, a 5-10, 160-pound senior from Jackson, Tenn.

Ford expresses pride in the showings of each to date but hopes for even more improvement in all phases of end play before the Bulldogs challenge Tulane on Sept. 4 at the Louisiana Superdome to start the season.

"We have a fine group of people who also happen to be good athletes at end," he explained, "and this helps in our preparations."

Alphabetically, here's how Ford rated each performer at this slot:

"Dorwyn Aldredge, obviously, will play quite a bit for us in 1982," said the receivers' coach. "He runs fine patterns and has deceptive speed. He's a good athlete with all the tools."

"James Bloodworth has made a lot of improvement," Ford noted. "He came to practice in 1982 looking like a man and is preparing hard for the season."

"Steve Duncan is a true wide receiver and came back to us this fall in good shape to compete," he related. "He's a player of the future."

"Clifton Eley is another player who has shown a lot of progress in all areas," Ford stated, "and he is both strong and coachable. He has been making things happen for us."

"Eddie Hornback is a fine player and has done a good job for us at end," he acknowledged. "He has played quarterback and defensive positions and is a quality athlete."

"Danny Knight, as well as Glen Young, might be one of the most versatile players to suit up at State this year," Ford said. "For any team, he could probably start at either runningback or end, and he's a really fine receiver."

"Art Mordecai runs the best post pattern in this segment of our routes," stated the MSU assistant coach, "and he's a fine athlete as well as an unbelievably good person."

"Kevin McCarter is a non-scholarship senior who has been loyal and dedicated to the program," Ford explained. "He gives every play his best shot and is willing to help in whatever way is necessary."

"Jerry Price is one of the top tight ends in the country," said his position coach. "He can block with the best of them and can bring the ball down for a catch from all angles. He has the skill and personality to be a great one."

"O.W. Richardson is another good football player," said Coach Ford. "He runs outstanding patterns and has good hands. He could start for almost any major-league team in the nation."

"J.T. Thomas has really improved this year," he noted. "For a man who never played high school football (Thomas came to State as a track athlete) and who just started playing college football last year, he has improved daily."

"Glen Young is an outstanding athlete who is versatile enough to be a great receiver as well as a national-class kick return man," stated Ford. "We are expecting great things out of him this fall, and he has ample talent."

Mississippi State's receivers do strike a pretty impressive pose, and now they are hoping to turn that potential into reality as the Bulldogs march into the teeth of possible the toughest schedule in university history.

Channel 7 football lineup announced

TBS Sports' presentation of 38 live, prime-time NCAA football games over the next two years begins with five key games telecast on WTBS, Hancock Cable Channel 7, in September.

The September schedule, which debuts on Thursday, Sept. 2 as Nevada-Las Vegas (UNLV) hosts Brigham Young University, features a variety of the nation's top teams.

A special, 30-minute program previewing the NCAA football season will air on September 2 at 7:05 p.m. immediately followed by the BYU-UNLV game at 7:35 p.m.

The tentative September schedule is as follows: Thursday, Sept. 2, Brigham Young at UNLV, 7:35 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 4, Boston College at Texas A&M, 6:05 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 11, Tulane at Southern Methodist, 7:05 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19, Oklahoma State at Tulsa, 8:05 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 25, Syracuse at Indiana, 7:05 p.m.

The debut telecast features the nation's top two passing offenses from a year ago. BYU led the nation followed by UNLV. The UNLV Rebels won last season's game 45-41 over BYU, which snapped the Cougars' 17-game winning streak. BYU went on to post an impressive 11-2 record and 11th place national ranking by UPI. Players to watch include BYU quarterback Steve Young, a direct descendant of Brigham Young, and UNLV linebacker Chris DeChristo. (Site: Silver Bowl, 32,000; Head Coaches: BYU - LaVell Edwards; UNLV - Harvey Hyde)

TBS Sports will cover Jackie Sherrill's debut as Texas A&M's head coach as his Aggies host the offensive-minded Boston College Eagles. Sherrill, who posted a 50-9-1 record as Pittsburgh's head coach the past five years, has a veteran squad including quarterback Gary Kubiak, running back Johnny Hector and defensive back Billy Cannon Jr., son of former Heisman Trophy winner Billy Cannon. The Eagles, coached by Jack Bicknell, are led by sophomore quarterback Doug Flutie, the nation's ninth-ranked passer last season, and wide receiver Brian Brennan. (Site: Kyle Field, 70,000; Head Coaches: Boston College - Jack Bicknell; Texas A&M - Jackie Sherrill)

Two of the country's finest running backs, potential All-America candidates Craig James and Eric Dickerson of SMU, are slated to make their first appearance on national television in this TBS Sports exclusive. Dickerson (1,428 yards) and James (1,147 yards) led SMU's "Poney Express" attack last year as the Mustangs compiled a 10-0 record, a Southwest Conference championship and a No. 5 national ranking.

The Tulane Green Wave, winners in six of their last seven games in 1981, will counter with stellar running back Elton Veals, who broke O.J. Simpson's rushing records at Merritt Junior College in California, and quarterback Mike McKay, who closed out the 1981 season with 78 of 124 for 927 yards and 10 touchdowns. (Site: Texas Stadium, 65,000; Head Coaches: Tulane - Vince Gibson; SMU - Bobby Collins)

As always, the OSU Cowboy-Tulsa Hurricane battle is a key interstate rivalry. Oklahoma State has won nine of the last 10 meetings, including last year's game 23-21 with a 24-yard field goal in the closing seconds. Key players include Tulsa running backs Ken Lacy and Brett White and OSU linebacker Mike Green and nose guard Gary Lewis.

A Balanced Diet Is Important For Proper Training

Bob Mathias, Olympic gold medal winner, is Director of the Wonder Training Club for Olympic Sports.

Youngsters who join the Wonder Training Club for Olympic Sports are learning, just like Olympic hopefuls, that well-balanced meals can be as important as the skill development that can lead to gold medal performance. These nutrition guidelines, personalized training tips, a training wall chart and a membership patch are all included in the training club.

People who are in training, may find their appetites increase. That's the body's way of making sure one receives the proper number of calories to keep going. But one must remember, the average daily caloric intake will increase while training, and as a result the effect of any dietary deficiency or excess will be more marked. That means it is very important to maintain a well balanced diet during training.

Avoid any "special" diets that concentrate too much on single foods or that recommend high vitamin and mineral supplements. A balanced diet should provide sufficient amounts of fats, carbohydrates, proteins, vitamins and minerals.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture guidelines for a healthy diet recommend eating foods from each of the four major food groups every day: Fruits and vegetables for vitamins (especially A and C) and minerals like potassium, magnesium and zinc; meats to supply protein, fat, iron and other minerals as well as many vitamins including B12; dairy products for calcium, other minerals and vitamins; enriched and whole grain breads, cereals or other grain products to provide B vitamins, iron and energy.

Drink adequate amounts of water before, during and after training and competition to avoid dehydration.

To receive nutrition details as well as training guidelines from the Wonder Training Club for Olympic Sports, a child should fill out the entry form on the back of a package of Wonder white bread, buns, rolls, muffins, Raisin Rounds, Family Wheat or whole wheat bread. Information requested includes age, height, weight, Olympic sport the child is interested in, and the child's personal goal in that sport over the next six months.

The youngster mails his completed form and a $5 membership fee to Wonder. Wonder will make a cash donation to the U.S. Olympic Committee for every membership. The child then receives a personalized kit that contains:

1. A letter from Bob Mathias, 3-time Olympic gold medalist, member of U.S.O.C. and director of Wonder Training Club, thanking him for joining the club and helping to support the U.S. Olympic Team.
2. A personalized training program developed by leading athletic coaches from around the country in cooperation with Bob Mathias and the U.S. Olympic Committee.
3. A general training program for building strength and expertise in the sport of choice.
4. Nutrition and diet tips.
5. A membership patch. Colorfully embroidered on a sturdy cotton background, it features Wonder Training Club identification and can be sewn onto a jacket or shirt.
6. A training wall chart. A weekly, four month chart in which the young athlete can track his progress as his performance level increases.
7. A 25-cents-off coupon for Wonder bread.
8. A unique opportunity to buy sports equipment at attractive prices.

Adequate water essential in hot weather scrimmaging

By LAURENCE M. HURSH, M.D.
Consultant
National Dairy Council

In case you haven't yet noticed, it's that time of year again: football season. And hard at practice on the playing fields of high schools, colleges and universities across the country are swarms of young athletes — drilling and scrimmaging under a sometimes sizzling September sun.

Toiling in torrid temperatures without proper precautions can carry players to the verge of heat stroke and, in some cases, even death. Yet there are still coaches who, comfortably directing play from the sidelines, forget what it's like out there on the field. They forget how quickly their players — especially interior linemen — become dehydrated during rigorous practices on hot days.

Thus we hear, season after season, stories of football players — mostly high school students — who collapse on the field and die of heat stroke. The tragedy of this is that almost all such deaths are preventable.

Coaches must remember the vital need athletes have for water under these circumstances. In fact, they should even insist that each of their players drink water before, during and after practice. Otherwise, an athlete will rely solely on his sense of thirst and replace only one-half to two-thirds of the water he has lost through sweating. And what happens when this water's not replenished?

Let's say, for example, a player has lost water equal to a mere 2.2 percent of his total body weight. Even at this point, his performance may drop significantly. If that loss equals 3 percent, his pulse rate and body temperature jump. At 6 percent, his respiratory rate increases and his blood volume drops. He also experiences nausea, difficulty in movement and emotional instability.

At a water loss equal to 9 percent of his body weight, the athlete almost invariably suffers heat stroke.

To make certain their players don't become dangerously dehydrated, coaches should weigh them in before and after practice. The rule of thumb for replacing water lost through sweating is simply 8 oz. for every half-pound dropped. Immediately prior and during practice, cold water is best. After practice, this replenishment can also come from milk and fruit juices.

There are other measures coaches can take to safeguard against heat stroke on the field. They can plan early-season practices that will allow their players to become slowly acclimated to both heat and exercise. They can also be sure their players have light, loose-fitting uniforms — preferably the kind with short-sleeve net jerseys.

But the most important safeguard remains water — and lots of it.

Hancock oyster season to open Oct. 18

Sunrise, Oct. 18, will mark the opening of oyster tonging season on the St. Stanislaus Reef in Hancock County as well as the Waveland Reef and the Pass Christian Tonging Reef.

Other reefs opening on that date include the White House Reef in Biloxi; Bayou Cumbest Reef in Jackson County; Heron Bayou in Jackson County; Bangs Lake in Jackson County; and Rigolets in Jackson County.

The Long Beach Tonging Reef is scheduled to be the first to open at sunrise, Oct. 4 because 60 percent of the Long Beach oysters have died this year due to crowded conditions.

Marine officials hope that by concentrating the tonging at Long Beach, the oyster population will decrease and then resume normal growth.

Ron Herring, a fisheries biologist with the Bureau of Marine Resources, said conditions for oyster growth have been good this year and that barring any extreme changes in weather conditions, the season should provide a good harvest.

He said a good medium salinity level in oyster areas is a key factor in the health of the oyster crop.

Commercial fishermen are allowed a daily possession limit of six barrels or 18 sacks of oysters per boat; recreational fishermen are permitted a limit of three sacks of oysters per boat.

Recreational and in-state commercial oyster licenses can be purchased at the following outlets:

—City Sports Center, 3907 Denny Ave., Pascagoula
—Tucel's Fishing Camp, 3300 Oak Street, Gautier
—Sue Bone, Rt. 1, Box 294, Long Beach

—Bureau of Marine Resources Enforcement Office, 1201 East Bayview, Biloxi
—Gautier Marina, 704 Sandstone, Gautier

—Howard Brothers #50, US 90, Ocean Springs
—Ken and Sue's, P. O. Box 68, Pearllington

—Bureau of Marine Resources Enforcement Office, Pass Christian Small Craft Harbor

—Presley's Grab-all-Grocery, 9216 Forts Lake Road, Pascagoula

—Ft. Bayou Fishing Camp, N. Washington Avenue, Ocean Springs

—Alvin Kingston Sport Shop, 100 Blaize Ave., Bay St. Louis

—Bureau of Marine Resources Main Office, Gulf Park Campus, Long Beach

Out-of-state oyster fishing licenses must be purchased at Bureau of Marine Resources offices.

Recreational licenses are $2, in-state commercial licenses are $15 for tonging boats and $30 for dredging boats, out-of-state commercial licenses are $25 for tonging boats and $50 for dredging boats.

All boats engaged in the harvesting of oysters must be licensed. Current boat registration cards or documentation papers are necessary to purchase licenses.

SCREENING ROOM ONLY

By David H. Jones

"My Dinner With Andre" Sometime between now and Sept. 2, get in your car and drive to New Orleans. Once inside the city, head for 5339 Prytanis Street and treat yourself to an exquisite film experience with "My Dinner With Andre."

Directed by Louis Malle and scripted by the films' stars, Wallace Shawn and Andre Gregory, "My Dinner With Andre" is a bold, startling step in contemporary movie making. It concerns exactly what its title infers, a dinner is shared by Shawn and Gregory—two intelligent, personable gentlemen—and what is discussed must be seen and heard to be believed.

This film touches base with everyone. Conversation ranges from the forests of Poland to the Sahara Desert to a cigar shop on Seventh Avenue in New York City to fortune cookies. It is an incredible display of emotion, mental imagery and poetic intelligence. In addition, it is refreshingly free of violence, foul language, nudity and sex.

The screenplay, which was gleaned from hundreds of hours of taped conversations between Gregory and Shawn, is filled with powerful passages on life and love and, quite unexpectedly, there is a platter full of perfect humor doled out by the pudgy and infectious Shawn.

Called by their first names throughout the film, Wallace and Andre literally represent the difference between metaphysical consciousness and reality.

Andre Gregory, a Broadway director ("Alice in Wonderland"), is the intellectual and he begins the conversation at a breakneck pace. Wallace Shawn, a Broadway playwright, simply sits dumbfounded, adding an occasional stupidly-worded phrase to the magical pearls of syllables that Andre seems to continuously link together.

Suddenly Wally catches on to this cat-and-mouse philosophical debate and he begins to dissect Andre's arguments, sometimes with hilarious results.

Louis Malle, who also directed "Atlantic City" (my choice for best picture in 1981), directs "My Dinner With Andre" with a deft hand and eye. A single scenario has never been utilized like Malle uses this posh Manhattan restaurant to make his point.

A constant series of closeups and two-shots and zooms convey worlds of feeling, while never boring through repetition. Malle who once said that "the most consistently changing landscape is the human face" proves that with "My Dinner With Andre."

Movies attempt to give you a feeling of time and place, whether it be a war or love story, or a historical or futuristic tale. "My Dinner With Andre" jumps from past to present to future so quickly you barely have time to keep up. The conversation transports you out of the movie seat and into realms of knowledge and feeling that you may have forgotten existed.

It is indeed a shame that this film didn't garner a single Academy Award. Surely best original screenplay is in order and, to be quite truthful, Shawn and Gregory should have both been nominated for best actor. In recent years, no two people have dominated a film like these two do with the same eyes-on-effect.

"My Dinner With Andre" is an incredible piece of film! You will leave the theater feeling differently about the world than you do now. And for a film to have such a profound influence on an audience, it surely must be classed as a coup de maître, a masterpiece.

BRIEFLY
The Prytanis Theater has an extraordinary lineup of movies including, North by Northwest, Notorious, Pixote, Harold and Maude, Diva, Rules of the Game and The Long Good Friday. For more information about the schedule call 504-895-4513.

Architect, judge to be featured by Library Friends

By JOE PILET
Coordinator

Friends of The Library
Fred Wagner, well known Bay St. Louis architect and speaker, will address Friends of the Library when the group meets Thursday, Sept. 2, at the City-County Public Library.

Serving as docent for the occasion will be Circuit Court Judge J. Rubie Griffin, also of Bay St. Louis.

All interested persons are welcome. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the Crawford Room, according to Mrs. Prima Wusack, Hancock County Library System librarian.

"Bay St. Louis is very old with the Cowan House dating from 1803," according to Wagner.

"The most interesting thing about Bay St. Louis' architecture is that it has some fairly good examples of a variety of different periods, still intact," he said.

"Not only are individual buildings in some cases significant, but there are some very interesting details on a number of these buildings which I will touch on in my address to Friends of the Library," he noted.

Students and others interested in learning of Bay St. Louis' history through its architecture are urged to attend this lecture.

Friends of the Library recently reorganized, adopting the Decent Plan for the primary purpose of establishing the Library System as a culture center and to bring together the many talented and public-spirited persons living in this area.

The system includes libraries in Kiln and Waveland, all offering multiple services such as exhibits, programs, copy machine, interlibrary loans, microfilm, large print and talking books for the blind or handicapped persons.

Under the newly adopted plan there will be no formal procedure such as reading of minutes or giving of reports by the secretary-treasurer in order to allow more time for programs and for fellowship.

Mrs. John McKenna, hostess for the group, will train young tea girls who will alternate in serving refreshments.

Mrs. McKenna said, "This training will give our young people an opportunity to know our community leaders and at the same time afford adults the pleasure of their company."

Judge Griffin said, "I am happy to have the opportunity to introduce Mr. Wagner. I have known him for a long time. He has lived in Hancock County since 1958, was born in New Orleans and got his degree in architecture from Tulane University."

"Some examples of his work are Coast Electric Power Association on US-90, the Highway Branch of Hancock Bank, the Brother Peter Memorial Gym at St. Stanislaus, and the cafeteria at the Junior High School — just to name a few," the judge elaborated.

Mrs. Viola Cunningham, secretary-treasurer for the group, will accept membership dues from those who wish to join at the end of the meeting and the scrapbooks covering press releases of library activities kept by Mrs. Clairborne Ladner will be on display.

The Ulman Street entrance to the Library will be used for all meetings.

PRC bus schedules early a.m. stops in Hancock

Pearl River College will have at least nine commuter buses serving PRC students and faculty during the 1982 fall semester.

Miller Hammill, dean of student affairs, said the busses began regular morning and afternoon routes on Tuesday.

At the present time commuter buses are scheduled to service the Bassfield-Sumrall, Columbia-Baxterville and Prentiss areas.

Two commuter buses leave each day from the Bay St. Louis, Petal-Hattiesburg and Picaune areas of the Pearl River College supporting district.

"When school begins and if we need more buses for any area, we'll put them on the road," Hammill said. "This is just another service for our students."

The cost of riding a PRC commuter bus is $100 per semester. College dormitory students are eligible to ride the commuter bus at no cost only on Friday afternoon and Monday morning, provided space is available.

Any non-commuter bus student may ride a commuter bus during the week at a cost of $1.25. Regular riders have first priority for available space.

Students riding a Pearl River bus from within the six-county district can get a full semester of college credit for only $320. This figure includes tuition, books and the bus pass.

A noon day meal ticket is $130 per semester.

16th Century autobiography traces public library origins

By JOE FILET
Coordinator
City County Library
Within the Hancock County Library System is certain proof of immortality - endless existence. Our public library system of free book distribution dates from Sir Thomas Bodley (1545-1613) founder of the first public library and known as the Bodleian Library.

In a sense all public libraries are patterned after this institution, however, services to fit the varying needs of the community have been added and include talking books for the blind or handicapped; audiovisual materials, children's department, periodicals, copy machines, recorded music and research materials.

In his brief autobiography Sir Thomas Bodley traced the "accidents" of his life. He was born into a wealthy and prominent family of the protestant persuasions, the father, an avowed "enemy to Popery."

During the reign of Queen Mary and for the purpose of religious freedom and to avoid persecution the Bodley family moved to Germany.

After a succession of relocations, and following the death of Queen Mary, the family returned to England settling in London.

Young Thomas entered the University of Oxford and writes that in the year 1563 he received a "Bachelor of Arts" degree. Three years later he earned his master's.

During the rule of Queen Elizabeth, Bodley was knighted as he had distinguished himself as a statesman and ambassador.

When serving as a professor at Oxford University Sir Thomas solicited books from other wealthy men and contributed his vast personal collection of books to build what is now known as the Bodleian Library.

He willed his entire fortune for the maintenance of this library and in the quaint phraseology of early English concluded his autobiography by saying:

"How well I have sped in all my endeavours and how fully provisioned I have made for the benefit and ease of all frequenters of the Library, that which I have already performed in sight, that besides which I have given for the maintenance of it, and that which hereafter I purpose to add, by way of enlargement to that place (for the project is cast, and whether I live or dye it shall be God willing, put in full execution), will testify so truly and abundantly for me, as I need not be the publisher of the dignity and worth of mine own Institution. Written with my own hand Anno 1603, December the 15, The Bodley."

Sir Thomas Bodley was buried in Merton College on the 29th day of January, 1613 assured through his contribution of having achieved immortality.

Waveland dance school celebrating 25th year

Piccola's School of Dance in Waveland is celebrating its 25th year. The school owned and operated by Piccola Dietrich first opened its doors in September, 1957 on Nicholson Avenue and now includes two new branches in Bush, La.

Dietrich says that she is now teaching a second generation of students, the children of her original pupils. Her students have performed in carnival balls from Clermont Harbor to Pascagoula, retardation centers, senior citizens organizations, homes for the elderly, the Miss Dance of Louisiana Contest in New Orleans, and the Waveland Players.

Dietrich is choreographer for that group.

Dietrich is trying to contact all former students and graduates to participate in the school's 25th Revue in June, 1983.

PICCOLA'S FIRST REVUE—Participating in the first revue staged by Piccola's School of Dance in Waveland 25 years ago are Dorcell Russell, Anne Ward, Colette Zimmerman, Leja Rutherford and Debbie Poolson. Piccola Dietrich, founder of the school, is attempting to locate the five to invite them to participate in the school's 25th revue scheduled in June, 1983. Anyone with information on the whereabouts of the dancers is asked to call Dietrich at 467-4666.

Students favor sex education

(Prepared by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, Reston, Va.)

America's student leaders are strongly in favor of teaching sex education in schools, opposed to mixing religion and politics, and against spending great amounts of federal dollars on defense; but they have mixed feelings about handgun control.

These were some of the beliefs expressed by 1,100 secondary school students during the 46th annual National Association of Student Councils (NASC) conference. Students from all 50 states, Australia, Canada, and Puerto Rico, attended the summer meeting where they voted their preference on several social issues. During each session, the students heard presenters speak on each side of the issue, questioned those speakers, and voted.

One of the best attended debates dealt with whether schools should teach sex education.

Robert Selyerstone, Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S., argued that providing students information would help them make wise decisions. "How can anyone advocate ignorance?" he asked. Gordon Jones, executive director, United Families of America, contended that the values of the teachers would influence their instruction and sway student attitudes.

The students felt that schools should teach sex education by an overwhelming margin, 568-21.

Students also believed that religious values should stay clear of the political arena in a debate which featured Robert Blaemire, president, Committee for American Principles, arguing against religious involvement in politics, and Rev. Mike Gass, Oregon chairman of the Moral Majority.

While Gass contended that religious leaders pay taxes and have the same right of involvement as anyone else, Blaemire countered that religious values color decisions people make in their lives. Students voted against religious involvement, 311-89.

Another session featured the question, "Should defense spending be our nation's number one spending priority?" Students opposed that concept, 225-37.

The decision was not as clear on whether ownership of handguns should be controlled. Eighty-eight kinds voted that there should not be further restrictions, while 76 supported greater restrictions.

Students believe that the country is not managing its natural resources as wisely as possible. Fifty-one supported that contention in a debate on the balance between protection of the environment versus growth. Thirty-one sided with the idea that growth was being accomplished with appropriate protection of resources.

The final session dealt with whether local school boards have the authority and legal right to remove books from school libraries and curricula. The students opposed this concept by a 306-72 vote.

"These students will be our nation's leaders in a few short years," said Terry Giroux, director, student activities, National Association of Secondary School Principals. "Our aim in these point-counterpoint sessions and throughout the conference is to inform them about the crucial economic, social and political issues facing America."

Some surprising rock records

By ROBIN WELLES
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Test your musical IQ — who had the biggest selling record? Ring Crosby, the Beatles or Elvis Presley?

If you picked Crosby, you were absolutely right. His version of Irving Berlin's "White Christmas" has sold more than 30 million copies.

And the runner-up is neither the Beatles nor Elvis. Instead, it is "Rock Around the Clock" by Bill Haley & The Comets, a record that sold more than 17 million copies. This is the same Haley who died a while back in Texas, lonely, depressed and largely forgotten by the public.

According to "The Illustrated Book of Rock Records," a Delilah paperback, the Beatles' "I Want to Hold Your Hand" finished third with over 12 million sold.

And Elvis checked in at No. 4 with (surprisingly) "It's Now or Never" with sales of over 10 million. One would have thought "Hound Dog" or "Don't Be Cruel" would be higher.

But those two aren't far be-

World Of Music

hind — tied for fifth with sales of over 8 million.

Others in the Top 10: "I'm a Believer," Monkees, over 8 million; "Diana," Paul Anka, over 8 million; "Hey Jude," Beatles, over 8 million, and "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," Gene Autry, over 7 million.

In case you're curious, Debby Boone's massive hit, "You Light Up My Life," is 16th on the all-time list with sales of more than 6 million.

GREG KINN BAND — Khatloun (Berkley - Elektra) — If you kinn move, Kinn will move you with his four-piece band out of San Francisco. Kinn has been rocking along for eight years and it looks like the roll will go on for at least another eight. Nothing fancy here — just your have-fun, good-time boogie.

KARLA BONOFF — Wild Heart of the Young (Columbia) — As the title implies, Karla tends to be a romantic dreamer. But she picks up the tempo a bit on this one, egged on by a rhythm and blues backup. Still, those who anticipate a bit of misty eyes with the soft-rock won't be disappointed.

DON WILLIAMS — Letter to the Radio (MCA) — You might know that anyone born in Floydada, Texas would have to grow up to become a country singer. Which is what Don did, and an uncommonly good one, at that. He's as smooth and mellow as old wine. Not a trace of country rock. Slip on some jeans and settle back.

USM to offer courses in international business

Beginning this fall the University of Southern Mississippi will begin offering an emphasis area in international business under the economics major at the baccalaureate level.

Along with regular courses in business, 12-15 hours of international business courses will be required. The courses include International Finance, International Marketing, International Trade, The Economy of Latin America, International Economic Development and Comparative Economic Systems.

Students can also earn up to six hours credit in the economics classes offered as part of the Institute of Anglo-American Studies; summer program in London.

"This emphasis is part of the University's growing commitment to international education," said Dr. Tyrone Black, economics department chairman.

Dr. Eddie Lewis will be coordinator of the emphasis.

area. She has studied in Algeria and travelled in Europe and South America.

Also required are 12 hours of a foreign language and recommended courses in history, political science, and anthropology. This emphasis offers students interest in foreign languages a way to use their language skills, said Black.

He said the emphasis has already generated a tremendous amount of student interest.

The courses will introduce students to the facets of international business and give them a broader base of knowledge when seeking a job in companies that have overseas offices or are involved in exporting and importing.

Incoming freshman can choose either to focus on Latin American or European economics, according to Black.

For additional information about this new emphasis area in economics leading to the bachelor of science in business administration degree, contact Dr. Tyrone Black, Southern Station Box 5072, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39401.

William Carey offers credits for METV courses

For the adult learner who is unable to attend regular classes, ETV provides the most interesting alternative.

Two courses will be offered through William Carey College this fall as a part of the statewide effort to increase adult participation in college-level courses on Mississippi ETV.

Both courses begin Sept. 4 and end Dec. 18. Each carries three semester hours credit and a special reduced tuition of $75 per course.

Jack Rogers, dean of continuing education at Carey, will be the campus contact person for students. A packet of study tips, course guides and a newsletter are provided for the student.

There is an excellent text and a guidebook with assignments to be mailed.

Registration will be held on Aug. 31 on the Hattiesburg campus from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. or by mail until Sept. 1.

Contact Mr. Jack Rogers at Box 192, Carey College, Hattiesburg or telephone 582-5651, extension 230, for details.

The first lesson will be shown on Mississippi ETV at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 4. The course is titled "The American Story: the Beginning to 1877" and is listed by Carey as History 193. A repeat of the lesson will be on Sunday, Sept. 5 at 5 p.m. "Focus on Society," Sociology 193 in the Carey listing, will show each Saturday at 3 p.m. beginning Sept. 4.

MHP cadet class applications reviewed

The 1982 Mississippi Highway Patrol's cadet training class will begin August 24, Commissioner Sidney Berry and Chief Donald Butler report.

The school, originally scheduled to start July 20, was delayed under terms of a court order agreed to by the Department of Public Safety and lawyers for plaintiffs in the Morrow vs. Dillard lawsuit.

Legal counsel for the plaintiffs had objected to the racial composition of the class and complained that black applicants were discriminated against in the cadet selection process.

The highway patrol cadet class set to begin August 24 will consist of 41 whites and 29 blacks. At the time of the court order, 47 whites and 23 blacks were enrolled for the training program.

"The court order instructed us to reevaluate applications made by 37 blacks that were rejected during the original selection process," Commissioner Berry said. "We have done this."

"Under the court order, an effort was made to develop a class of 35 blacks and 35 whites. Six of the 37 rejected applicants met the qualifications to be highway patrol cadets," the commissioner said.

"Six white cadets who had been selected for the 1982 training program must delay their training," Chief Butler said. "More than enough white cadets volunteered to wait until the next class which will begin in 1983."

The highway patrol chief said that the process of reviewing cadet selection procedures is underway, as directed in the court order. He said any part of the procedure that discriminates against black applicants will be eliminated.

"We have a cadet class that shows promise...that has many outstanding candidates. We are looking for a good school."

"Nothing about this most recent court order means standards for highway patrol recruits have been lowered," Butler said.

"We agreed to the text of the court order with the understanding that anyone applying to serve as a highway patrol cadet would still meet the department's standards of excellence before being admitted to the school."

"The department will require any recruit that enters the class to meet the department's usual high standards before he is graduated and commissioned," Butler said.

Soybean Association launches major campaign to boost oil sales

The American Soybean Association has launched a major campaign to boost soybean income through soybean oil sales.

"We're drowning in a sea of surplus soybean oil," ASA President Charles Hamon said in a letter to ASA members.

"A 1-cent a pound change in soybean oil prices changes soybean prices as much as 32 cents a bushel. During the past year alone, the drop in soybean oil prices has reduced soybean prices about 80 cents a bushel," he said.

"U.S. farmers are suffering from the devastating effects of high production costs—especially interest rates—and low prices. While the association can't directly affect the negative impact of interest rates and other external factors, we can help reduce the high surplus of soybeans and soybean products."

Hamon, a Kansas farmer, said ASA has launched a three-pronged campaign:

• A research and education program to expand the use of soybean oil as a crop oil in the formulation of agricultural chemicals and as a replacement for water as a carrier for agricultural and forest chemicals.

If this acreage was sprayed using soybean oil, Hamon said these uses could consume as much as one billion pounds of soybean oil yearly.

The surplus currently amounts to about 1.5 billion pounds, he noted.

• A worldwide effort to expand consumption of soybean oil. This includes specific projects in Asia, Latin America and Europe designed to expand consumer use of soybean cooking oils and margarine.

A similar effort doubled Germany's consumption of soybean cooking oils.

The campaign also includes an extensive education and promotion program to expand European consumption of full fat soybean livestock feed which would reduce the oil surplus.

The feeding program, which involves using crushed soybeans as a replacement for soybean meal, could increase soybean oil consumption in Europe 10 times to two billion pounds.

• A national program to increase the industrial use of soybean oil. ASA has contacted major U.S. companies encouraging them to replace petroleum oil with soybean oil in chemical formulations.

In addition, the association is encouraging the use of soybean oil, or perhaps soybean lecithin, as a dust suppressant in grain handling. This could use another 500 million to 1 billion pounds of soybean oils yearly.

"Unlike my father's generation, today's farmers are involved in an internationally-oriented agriculture," Hamon said. "Increasing sales represents one way farmers can help themselves. There are no instant solutions to this farm depression."

"But, we believe our actions will position soybeans for a speedy recovery by building a foundation to boost soybean profits."

SHELL, FIN SUPPORT—More than 85,000 acres of marshland provide a safe haven for many of the shell and fin fish Mississippians enjoy. It takes 14 acres of marshland to support production of these seafoods for an average person in Mississippi each year. Saltwater marshland gives us shrimp, crab, oysters, speckled trout, redfish, eels, menhaden, alligator, and other wildlife and waterfowl. Products include oils for paint, perfumes, handbags and shoes. Marshes are the grazing land of crabs and provide another use. For Mississippi land, send for Land Use Publication 59, free upon request from the Cooperative Extension Service, P. O. Box 5405, Mississippi State MS 39762.

Energy Answers from Mississippi

Energy Extension Center

Q. Do ceiling fans really help distribute heat in the winter or is that fan sales talk?

A. Most everyone's been saying for some time now that ceiling fans do help distribute heat in houses with high ceilings or cathedral ceilings. Apparently that has been the experts' "best guess" about the question because there's contradictory information now from a consumer advocacy group.

Staff members at "Consumer Reports" magazine tested ceiling fans last winter and issued their findings:

"No matter whether a fan was running in forward or reverse, and no matter what the room temperature was, we always felt cooler when the fan was running than when the fan was off," the staff report said.

A later check of temperatures at various levels of the room showed that air temperature at the ceiling was only a few degrees warmer than that at the floor. The staff members agreed that the cooling effect of the moving air outweighed any improvement in temperature distribution—even when the fan was on its lowest speed.

The value of ceiling fans for aiding summer cooling is not in question, however. Using a ceiling fan to keep air moving and setting the temperature of the air conditioner on 80 degrees or above does save money. If you're thinking of buying and using a fan, buy it for its cooling effect. Then experiment with it in winter. You may find it works for you.
